Read Text A, Where it all began, in the insert and answer Question 1 and Question 2.

Question 1

(a) In paragraph 1, what did the writer enjoy the most about moving the ice blocks the first time he did this?

When he would hit the kitchen wall with ice and the ice would shatter into pieces. [1]

(b) Using your own words, explain what the text means by 'I neglected my other duties.' (line 4)

The narrator was only focused on amusing himself with ice and in doing so he didn't fulfill his other jobs and didn't care much about them. [2]

(c) In paragraph 3, how did the writer feel at first about being in the ice house?

Give two details from the text to support your answer.

writer's feeling He was happy

details 'Pleasant contrast to the stifling heat outside' shows that he was glad he had escaped the heat and was now in a cooler room. 'I stood congratulating myself' shows how he considers being in the ~~pleasant~~ room and achievement as he won't have to clean up the mess he had made outside. [3]

(d) Explain what the writer was thinking when he leant against the door and it 'surprisingly swung open'. (lines 13–14)

He had thought that the door had been locked by Ahmed so was amazed when he found out it was open. [1]

(e) From paragraph 5, identify two techniques used by the palace kitchen cooks that the writer thought could be useful to improve the flavour of the ices he is making with Ahmad.

- They pureed fruits to concentrate and intensify the flavours
- Extracted perfumes of flowers to flavour creams and liquers.

(f) Give two reasons why the secrets of ice had remained 'known to few'. (line 22)

So that they remained within two families ~~*~~ who could have complete control over the ice business. This would reduce competition. Thus increasing profit. [2]

(g) In paragraph 7, the writer asked Ahmad what the ices they made tasted like.

(i) What reason did the writer give Ahmad for wanting to know?

So that he could understand better how to make the ice. [1]

(ii) Suggest the real reason the writer was asking about the taste of the ices.

He was curious about the taste. [1]

(h) Explain using your own words the writer's different feelings and opinions about Ahmad while he was working for him.

Give three details from anywhere in the text to support your answer.

When the writer suggests trying new techniques to make ices, Ahmed says: 'We are engineers, not cooks', showing that he is narrow minded and not open to new ideas. He was also very rule oriented and wasn't curious, therefore, when the writer asks him why the ice is crushed, he replies: 'What does it matter?'. The writer didn't like that Ahmed considered himself superior to him: '...simply a workhorse, a creature incapable of reason'. This shows that Ahmed ~~looked down~~ considered the writer a lowly being. [3]

[Total: 16]

- others on
→ manop control over the ice business

Question 2

(a) Read this sentence from the text:

'Ice crystals cracked and crunched against my teeth, dissolving on my tongue with a sparkling sensation.' (lines 38–39)

What effect does the writer suggest about the sensation of the crystals dissolving on his tongue by using the word 'sparkling' to describe it?

It shows that the sensation was unusual and stinging almost like an after effect of eating the ice. [2]

(b) Read this extract from the text:

'But, once I'd got over the initial strangeness, I found I could not forget that extraordinary flavour, nor the cold, frozen grittiness. It was as if the ice itself was enticing, daring me on. From then on, without Ahmad knowing, I tasted every ice confection we made.' (lines 43–46)

What does the writer want to suggest to the reader at this point in the story?

~~This~~ The tension and suspense is building up at this point since ~~Ahmed~~ the writer is doing something he's not supposed to and may get caught. [1]

(c) Explain why the writer uses the word 'creature' rather than 'boy' in the expression 'a creature incapable of reason.' (line 48)

This shows that he thinks Ahmed doesn't consider him a fellow human being and considers him inferior. [1]

(d) What two impressions does the writer want to convey to the reader in the sentence:

'And so I learnt the subtle art of more complex water ices: 'sorbetti', in which the syrups themselves were frozen, transforming magically to mounds of glittering crystals; and 'sherbets', the most difficult and enchanting of all, expertly infused with fragrant cardamom, and resembling refrozen snow.' (lines 50–53)?

The writer had been promoted in a way, and so learnt how to make more difficult and important ices as his skillset increased. This also shows that he was now trusted with more complex tasks. [2]

(e) Identify one example of how the writer uses language effectively to convey his feelings once he begins his double life, in this extract from the text:

'So began a period in which I lived a double life. By day, I followed Ahmad's instructions dutifully. But by night I was a kind of alchemist, the kitchen my laboratory as I experimented wildly, without method or purpose, trying increasingly outlandish and ridiculous combinations of flavours and ingredients. I froze soft cheeses, vegetable juices, even soups, hoping to chance on something – some method, some key – something that could unlock the deepest, frozen secrets of ice cream.' (lines 61–66)

Explain the impression the writer creates in the example you have identified.

example '.....I was a kind of alchemist, the kitchen my laboratory as I experimented wildly,' explanation The word 'alchemist' implies that he considers himself an innovator and someone who experiments with things. His kitchen acts like a laboratory since he ~~in~~ invents new flavours and formulas there by mixing ingredients like a scientist. 'wildly' suggests that there are no rules he follows and is guided by instinct. This conveys that he was determined to make 'ice cream' and invested ~~the~~ nights ~~in order to~~ trying to do so. (b) Imagine you are someone who lives in a city and has recently been on holiday at a 'black-hole resort'. You really enjoyed your stay.

You are asked to give feedback about your holiday in a survey.

Give your answer to the survey question, using information from the text.

The survey question: Some people think that a holiday at a 'black-hole resort' would be boring.

What is your opinion and why?

Your answer:

I disagree. As someone from a busy city, I needed a break and a holiday did just that. The resort I stayed at had all the facilities including water and electricity so I was quite comfortable. Some people may consider the places I went to 'basic' but there's no such thing since every place is unique and I got the chance with my company to learn about and explore different cultures and mix with locals, which was far from boring. I'm glad my resort didn't have phone services because the whole point of travelling is to reconnect with nature and disconnect with your busy life. The resort I stayed at is therefore, highly reccommended. [5]
