Read Text A, Where it all began, in the insert and answer Question 1 and Question 2.

Question 1

(a) In paragraph 1, what did the writer enjoy the most about moving the ice blocks the first time he did this?

Shooting them at the kitchen wall from a distance and watching them shatter into jewel-like shards. [1]

(b) Using your own words, explain what the text means by 'I neglected my other duties.' (line 4)

The writer ignored his other tasks and focused on moving ice blocks only, in a childish manner. [2]

(c) In paragraph 3, how did the writer feel at first about being in the ice house?

Give two details from the text to support your answer.

writer's feeling Incredibly cold, and also foolish details The writer ~~stood~~ 'congratulated ~~themselves~~ himself on avoiding the task of cleaning up' and wasn't dressed properly for the cold inside. The writer' began to shiver and was shaking from the searing cold' His confidence crumbled at his punishment.

[3]

(d) Explain what the writer was thinking when he leant against the door and it 'surprisingly swung open'. (lines 13–14)

He thought the door was locked shut.

(e) From paragraph 5, identify two techniques used by the palace kitchen cooks that the writer thought could be useful to improve the flavour of the ices he is making with Ahmad.

- Pureed fruits to intensify the flavours
- Extract perfumes of flowers for flavouring ~~creams and liqeur~~

(f) Give two reasons why the secrets of ice had remained 'known to few'. (line 22)

Some of this knowledge was contained in stained, leather-bound notebooks, but most knowledge was kept in Ahmed's head. [2]

(g) In paragraph 7, the writer asked Ahmad what the ices they made tasted like.

(i) What reason did the writer give Ahmad for wanting to know?

He'd seen the cooks try their dishes, and he thought he'd ~~bett~~ better understand how to make ice if he knew how they should taste. [1]

(ii) Suggest the real reason the writer was asking about the taste of the ices.

It was a tempting syrup of sweet oranges for the ice, and he really just wanted to try it. [1]

(h) Explain using your own words the writer's different feelings and opinions about Ahmad while he was working for him.

Give three details from anywhere in the text to support your answer.

The Writer knew he was only a worker to Ahmed as 'He taught him what he knew, not to share the secrets but to share the labour.' The writer felt Ahmed was superior to him in knowledge of ice as 'Ahmed kept a notebook to himself, ensuring the writer knew less than ~~the~~ Ahmed did.' Ahmed didn't want to try the writer's ideas and sometimes mocked him; 'He was taunting me: he knew I could not read.' [3]

Question 2

(a) Read this sentence from the text:

'Ice crystals cracked and crunched against my teeth, dissolving on my tongue with a sparkling sensation.' (lines 38–39)

What effect does the writer suggest about the sensation of the crystals dissolving on his tongue by using the word 'sparkling' to describe it?

It's a sensory effect targeting sense of taste as the feeling was jittery, exciting and cold, magical [2]

(b) Read this extract from the text:

'But, once I'd got over the initial strangeness, I found I could not forget that extraordinary flavour, nor the cold, frozen grittiness. It was as if the ice itself was enticing, daring me on. From then on, without Ahmad knowing, I tasted every ice confection we made.' (lines 43–46)

What does the writer want to suggest to the reader at this point in the story?

The writer loved the taste and now wanted to try every ice confection as he grew addicted and drawn towards it. [1]

(c) Explain why the writer uses the word 'creature' rather than 'boy' in the expression 'a creature incapable of reason.' (line 48)

Boy would indicate human; human who is capable of reason. But the writer was a creature, animal not as superior and not listening but simply obeying [1]

(d) What two impressions does the writer want to convey to the reader in the sentence:

'And so I learnt the subtle art of more complex water ices: 'sorbetti', in which the syrups themselves were frozen, transforming magically to mounds of glittering crystals; and 'sherbets', the most difficult and enchanting of all, expertly infused with fragrant cardamom, and resembling refrozen snow.' (lines 50–53)?

The writer was headfirst determined and wanted to learn more on complex ices. He was also excited and passionate about his work, given his descriptions; magically and enchanting [2]

(e) Identify one example of how the writer uses language effectively to convey his feelings once he begins his double life, in this extract from the text:

'So began a period in which I lived a double life. By day, I followed Ahmad's instructions dutifully. But by night I was a kind of alchemist, the kitchen my laboratory as I experimented wildly, without method or purpose, trying increasingly outlandish and ridiculous combinations of flavours and ingredients. I froze soft cheeses, vegetable juices, even soups, hoping to chance on something – some method, some key – something that could unlock the deepest, frozen secrets of ice cream.' (lines 61–66)

Explain the impression the writer creates in the example you have identified.

example a kind of alchemist, the kitchen my laboratory explanation The writer uses this comparison to show himself a scientist, eventhough he's a simple ice worker, to show his hardwork and dedication as he experimented all night in his 'laboratory', ambitious to make a new soft and smooth ice cream.

Read Text B, The Authentic Travel company, in the insert and answer Question 3.

Question 3

(a) Summarise what Bob Hunter thinks would appeal to customers booking a holiday with his travel company, according to Text B.

You must use continuous writing (not note form).

Use your own words as far as possible.

Avoid copying long sections of the text.

Your summary should be no more than 150 words.

Up to 10 marks are available for the content of your answer and up to 10 marks for the quality of your writing.

'Authentic Travel' was first co-founded by Bob Hunter in 1989, which went global in 1998, leading to Hunter overseeing 1300 local guides working in 130 countries. The concept of 'Authentic Travel' is customers getting a genuine and real experience, which proved a huge victory for the company. When Hunter travelled three months around Southeast Asia, he thought about the people back in Australia who would enjoy backpacking overseas, and explored the idea of a more benefical kind of backpacking, where customers could stay in hotels or guesthouses that are clean and comfortable. He believed the travellers would be able to see exciting cultures, without being isolated from the locals and realistic activites. Solo travellers have the flexibility to change their travel plans anytime and other customers can join in with any ~~prefre~~ preferred group to enjoy many travel activities everyday. Customers can realize there's more to resorts than sitting by a pool, and can go outside and indulge in fun tasks that they want to experience, as provided by 'Authentic Travel' service. Hunter's travel company exposes customers to internet service, allowing them to use their electronic devices, and are developing their special interest travel experiences, including exciting foodie trips with tasting and cooking lessons, ultimately leading to the company's popularity and great appreciation.

(b) Imagine you are someone who lives in a city and has recently been on holiday at a 'black-hole resort'. You really enjoyed your stay.

You are asked to give feedback about your holiday in a survey.

Give your answer to the survey question, using information from the text.

The survey question: Some people think that a holiday at a 'black-hole resort' would be boring.

What is your opinion and why?

Your answer:

It was a new experience for me, and I enjoyed it more than I thought I would. It brought me out of my shell as I mostly look at computer screens all day, and this experience opened my eyes to new activites. It helped me relax and take a break from work, by enjoying the beauty of nature without electronic ~~gadgets~~ devices. It exposed me to new, interesting cultures and I made many friends! I think it's great for relaxing, meditating and trying new things. [5]
