Exam Hack of the Day

Excess Denied

The Rule:

If the question asks for ONE thing, write ONE thing. Period.

Why?

Writing two or more answers when one is asked counts as "trying to cover all possibilities" — and the examiner will NOT mark it.
You will most likely score a 0, even if one of your answers is correct.

WRONG

Q: How did the writer feel?

Writer's feeling:
Confident and Excited

Two feelings given = trying to cover all possibilities = 0 marks

CORRECT

Q: How did the writer feel?

Writer's feeling:
Excited

One feeling = one clear answer = full marks

Especially for the Implicit + Explicit question:

Even if BOTH your details are correct and only the feeling is wrong, you can only get 1 mark maximum.
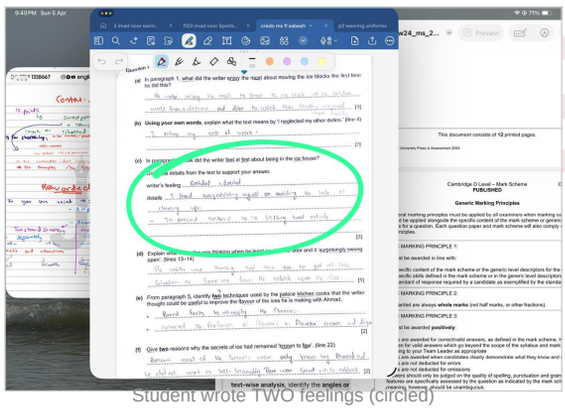
Don't throw away 2 marks by writing two feelings instead of one.

From the mark scheme & a student's script:



Student wrote TWO feelings (circled)

	for evidence it is understood and not used wrongly.).
e	DO NOT credit answers which are obviously self-contradicting or trying to cover all possibilities.
f	DO NOT give further credit for what is effectively repetition of a correct point already credited unless the language itself is being tested. This applies equally to 'mirror statements' (i.e. polluted/not polluted).
g	DO NOT require spellings to be correct, unless this is part of the test. However spellings of syllabus terms must allow for clear and unambiguous separation from other syllabus terms with

Mark scheme: DO NOT credit

1 asked = 1 given. Do NOT play with your grade.
